ANTI-PROHIBITION.

& Few Questions For Prohibitionists to Answer. To the CHRONICLE:

Your editorial in last week's paper as reards the position of the CHMONICLE on the obibition question is fair, and conservative, and, I for one will my nothing in conanation of it.

In the candid avowal of your private sentiments I can see nothing wrong, and, though they do not agree with mine, I can fully reet them, knowing as I do that they are the true sentiments of an honest man truthfully expressed.

Honest convictions are the right by heritage of all freemen, and whether privately reined, or publicly expressed, should be duly

I have my own as regards the question of prohibition, and others, and will not allow myself differed to, by neither church, nor state. Those who do, are slaves, and deserve not the name of freemen.

When you say that "prohibition is merely a temporary issue" I fully agree with you, and trust that your words will prove true, use the business of prohibition in Tenee, and with it, "The Issue" and "The all three, and the leaders that control them, without serious loss.

Your invitation for "a full and respectful cussion of the question at issue," in the columns of the CHRONICLE is as fair as could be desired, and in response to it I will re intrude to a slight extent upon the patience of your readers.

Here in Tennessee our own town of has ever prospered. Clarksville, though one of the oldest towns | Prohibition as desired in Tennessee will in the state, has grown from a village of place as under such control, and with it will about 1,500 people, and now claims 8,000, certainly come high taxation, spies and with one of the finest court houses in the detectives, perjury, bitter discords, and many state, splendid churches, college and school buildings, tobacco houses &c.

Chattanooga has grown from a country steamboat landing to a claim of 35,000, with Memphis, 40 years ago had 5,000, and now claims 60,000 inhabitants. I might proceed, and name Knoxville, ackson, and many other towns of the state that have rapidly increased in wealth, and population within the last 20 or 30 years. I might also go on to show the great im- the State cannot say, "You shall not eat provement in the agricultural, and stock interest also the increase in church buildings, and church memberships, educational facilities &c. &c. But I have stated enough be "vexing the citizen." enormous increase of wealth, population, ment and this, too, by the very highest ineducational facilities, Christian Influences and general prosperity has been gained for our National Union, and within our own state under what is termed "the liquor regime." That is to say: Distileries, brewers, wine presses, saloons and the liquor business generally, have been running at full blast through out the state of Tennessee, and through out the Union generally, where prosperity has been the greatest. Remember also that during the time that I have named educational, and Christian influences, including church memberships have increased through out the Union and within our own state nerly a thousand fold. Even the Methodist church within the state of Tennessee, and the south, has grown from poverty to wealth under this Republicans like Hawkins and McTeer; Resame "Whisky Rule." And these are facts that can not be denied by preachers of prohibition, or others. Now if the liquor traffic is such a terrible curse, and has had such control over both religious, and political affairs as is claimed by prohibition advocates, how was it possifor us to make such grand progress, in religious affairs, in educational facilities, and in every thing, not only in the state of Tennessee, in Texas, and the great West, but in all states of our great National Union, except a lew of the New England states? And this is one for certain. the two of these states that have made less progress than any of the others, and the only two that are reall on the decline, is the state of Maine, and the state of Vermont, where they have had prohibition for over 30 years. That these two states are on the decline, is a fact that can not be truthfully denied. On the 13th of February last the Hon. said: "Maine is the one and only State in this statement will hold true in regard to the the Union that is decreasin in population, colored preachers as well as the white. There 200,

Read this over twice dear reader, and consider it well before you vote to bring such disastrous results upon our own prosperous

Maine has had prohibition for 36 years, and Vermont has had it not quite so long, say something over 30 years. Mr. Edward Johnson, a well known writer in the Popular Science Monthly, a noted magazine, in speaking of prohibition in Vermontsays:

"It is a fact which can not be controverted, ordenied, that for all practical purposes the law is an absolute dead letter, and one might go still further, and speak of the perjury and subornation of perjury for which the law is in a sense responsible."

But we will leave these poor fanatic ridden states of New England, and return to where prosperity and freedom still reigns supreme, amid the vine clad hills and grass green vales of Tennessee.

And whilst here we will ask a few questions ever sold in Clarksville. I think the 29th day of September will that we trust will be answered correctly by prohibitionists.

Since we have gained such great and grand Flag," as the good temperence people of the prosperity under the old system of personal state, in my opinion, can well dispense with freedom, and the right to eat and drink at will; a system inherited from God, and the constitution of our Fore Fathers, and one that has been in vague since the creation of man, would it not be best to let well enough alone, remain as we are, and not permit the forcing upon us of a new fanatical problem the offspring of New England fanaticism, direct from the hot bed of hatred to all

Simply because, if the prohibition policy proved ruinous, or injurious to the best interest of the state, and the people wished to change back to the old system, they could not do so. This is one answer, but the main one is: that simple legislation upon the subject would not furnish certain prohibition tion succeeds.

Some Thoughts on the All-Absorbing Question-Prohibition.

The drink habit of this country is an awful many great iron manufacturing enterprises. evil. Nobody of any fairness will contradict this. The habit is wrong. It ought to be broken up. It is the duty of the State to do what it can to stop it. The State cannot by legal enactment, interfere directly with what people eat, drink or wear. This would be sumptuary and undemocratic. By law tainted or diseased meats;" you shall not wear infected clothing, you shall not drink intoxicating beverages." All of this would usands of her noblest sons were slain, shall not traffic in intoxictting liquors as a beverage." Indeed, the principle of Probable tion has been declared to be perfectly con-Now Mr. Editor, all of this grand and sonant with the genius of our free governterpreters of our Constitutional Law in the supreme courts of the States and of the Unitel States. If court decisions as precedents and settling principles are worth anything anywhere, then the principle of Prohibition as being correct is as clearly settled as it is possible for any principle to be settled. No man of any information now denies his right of the State to have Prohibition if she wants it. Is this a political question? Yes, and no! It is political because it fefers to the State, but it is not political in a partisan sense since men of all shades of political belief are espousing it. We have Democrats like Dibrell and S. F. Wilson; Democrats like Colyar and Cole; Democrats like Fussell and Smith; publicans like Ethridge and Jones; Mugwumps like East, and every shade of political partyism from the rantankerous-jimpsoninice-lowest-state-tax Democracy like Representatives McDowell, of Obion, and Johnson, of Williamson, to the extremest of the high tax Republicans like Senator Trimble, of Davidson. Is it a moral question? It would reem so. If virtue, sobriety, honor, peace and happiness on one side, vice, drunk enness, disgrace, turmoil and misery on the other can make up a moral question then

If it is a moral question, then the preachers have a right to come in.
